Alumni = credibility

Stanstead College's Annual General Meeting always coincides with Homecoming. It's kind of a two-for-one deal since a majority of our trustees and board members are also alumni, happy to do their bit to help run the school.

As former board chairman Joseph Levy (1971) used to tell our graduating students, no one owns Stanstead College, but if someone did, it would be the alumni. And our alumni lay claim to that ownership by being actively involved and working for their school.

(Incidentally, Joseph happens to be one of those active alumni, and you can read all about his involvement on page 23 of this issue.)

Here are just a few examples of alumni working on the College's behalf:

Akiko Fujimoto Watanabe (1993) is a trustee and spoke at our Baccalaureate service two years ago. Most recently she has been working with one of our Japanese students to help her apply to nursing schools in Canada.

Michael Peirce (1973) is an alumnus, a former teacher, retired head of Appleby College, a trustee and always ready to lend us a hand. Most recently, he's been showing us ways our University Guidance office can function better globally.

Napat Phisanbut (1998) has been our ambassador in Thailand for several years, manning booths at school fairs and liaising with Thai families. This past fall, she lent her support here in Stanstead during the golf tournament.

Rebecca Nienkamper (1983) served on the board and remains a trustee. This past October, she and her husband Blaise Hayward opened their home in New York to host an Admissions event for friends and parents interested in Stanstead College.

Paul Chiu (2006) is a brand new trustee and has been working with Admissions and actively promoting the school in Taipei.

George Diamandopoulos (1994) has been a trustee for several years and helps organize our annual Mexico Reunion – our best-attended gathering of the year.

Young Joon Oh (2000) has been assisting our Admissions Department in South Korea.

Charles Seagram (1992) is a new board member and a Young Alumni Award recipient for his active involvement in all matters Stanstead, in particular the annual Golf Tournament.

I could go on. It's great to see our former students giving so readily to their school. What's more, this kind of support is incredibly invaluable in terms of providing us credibility in the very tough global marketplace. Our alumni become our school's spokespeople – sometimes quite literally, especially in non-English-speaking countries. And we couldn't ask for better representatives.

I urge you, as members of the Stanstead College community, to preach the benefits of Stanstead College to your peers. Get involved. After all, it's your school.

Baccalaureate 2013

Dr. Pierre Geoffroy, Class of 1977, was the guest speaker at this year's Baccalaureate and Prize-Giving Service. Dr. Geoffroy drew on his medical background to talk about modifiable risk behaviours – in other words, keeping the body and mind healthy. Stanstead College has provided students with a good start in this regard, he said. The trick is to maintain those good habits.

"Despite your best intentions, though, things go wrong," he said. "And when that happens, don't be too proud to ask for help. This is where Stanstead remains invaluable for you. You've laughed together, shared good times, unhappy times. But the fact is you are in a community and will remain so."

Dr. Geoffroy concluded by asking the graduates to stand and take an "oath" that they would take care of their "temple" and that they would ask for help when needed.

Dr. Geoffroy spent five years at Stanstead College (Class of 1977). He continued his education at Marianopolis College, McGill and the University of Toronto. He completed his medical training at McGill with a residency in family medicine. After completing a master's degree in Epidemiology at McGill, Dr. Geoffroy worked for 15 years in research and development in pharmaceutical companies in Japan and North America. Currently, Pierre is a family physician in Toronto. He also has a childhood obesity clinic and teaches with the Ontario College of Family Physicians. In addition to this, he is medical director at Lambda Therapeutic Research Inc. where he conducts clinical research. He and his wife Catherine have two children, Sandrine and Alexandre.

At Baccalaureate, Dr. Geoffroy was introduced by his brother Michel (Class of 1973).

Forty-five Grade 11 students received their Quebec Secondary School Diploma in addition to 39 students receiving Grade 12 diplomas.

Head prefect and six-year "lifer" Liam Gribbon was this year's recipient of the Pitcher Memorial Prize, presented to the student who has exerted the greatest influence for good.

"Liam has had an outstanding impact on our school, and his presence helped to make Stanstead College a better place," said Headmaster Michael Wolfe. "Liam's willingness to challenge himself in a broad array of activities, especially student leadership, was greatly appreciated by all. I hope that Liam will always think of Stanstead College as his second home. I look forward to Liam's involvement in our school as an alumnus and perhaps in future governance of the school."

Headmaster's Award recipients Kyle Hume and Dian Yu

The Wilder Shield, presented to the junior student with the most positive influence, went to Natalia Flores Bringas of Mexico City. Active in sports, multiple clubs and extracurricular activities and a top academic student, Natalia was a mature, friendly and giving presence on campus all year long.

The top Grade 12 student was Tzu-Ting "Tiffany" Hsu of Taipei, Taiwan who received the Birks Silver Medal for the highest overall average in Grade 12; the Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics Prizes; the Spofforth Trophy for Excellence in Science and Mathematics; and the Arthur E. Curtis Jr. Award presented to the top student entering an engineering program, in Tiffany's case, mechanical engineering at the Rochester Institute of Technology. Tiffany also won the Trueman-McFadyen Award as the top athlete with the highest overall average.

The top Grade 11 student was Asia Wisco of Peterborough, Ont., who earned the Governor General's Medal for the highest average along with the English Prize, the Economics Prize, the French Prize (co-winner) and the Physics Prize. Asia also won the Thespian Shield for Acting.

Students receiving honours for the highest averages in other grades were Geneviève Quirion of Lac-Mégantic, Que. (Grade 10), Benjamin Clermont of Ogden, Que. (Grade 9), Samuel De Grace of Magog, Que. (Grade 8) and John Wood-Downey of Magog, Que. (Grade 7).

Catherine Quirion of Lac-Mégantic, Que. was named the senior female athlete of the year, winning the Shirley Wolter Trophy. Catherine was a three-sport Major S winner in 2012-13, in addition to winning the Girls Hockey MVP, Roger Marino Cup for Senior Girls Rugby. She also won the Comparative Politics and English Prizes.

Andrew Norris of Ogden, Que. was the Thomas Johnson Memorial senior male athlete of the year – another three-sport Major S winner in soccer, basketball (his first year playing!) and rugby. Andrew also co-won the Bobby Moore Trophy for Senior Boys Soccer and the Donald Ross Trophy for Senior Boys Rugby. Conor Rankin of Kanata, Ont. and Nicolas Beaudin of St-Bruno, Que. shared the senior athlete-scholar award. Conor also won the Grade 12 Psychology Prize.

The junior female athlete of the year was Estefania Colas Baeza of Huixquilucan, Mexico, while the junior male athlete of the year was Emiliano de la Fuentes Eslava of Mexico City.

Students earn AP accolades

Each year, many Grade 12 students write the Advanced Placement (AP) exams in different subjects. This year, three students did exceptionally well.

AP exams are scored on a 5-point scale, with a 3 meaning “qualified,” or that the student has proven himself capable of doing the work of an introductory-level course in that particular subject at college. A 4 is a rating of “well qualified” and a 5 is “extremely well qualified).

In 2013, Stanstead College students wrote 77 AP exams in 11 subjects. Of these, 46 exams scored 3 or higher – 20 with a 3; 15 exams with a 4; and 11 exams with a 5.

The College Board, which oversees the exams also awards AP Scholar Award certificates to recognize students who have demonstrated significant achievement on AP exams. AP Scholar certificates are granted to students who receive scores of 3 or higher on three or more exams, while AP Scholar with Honor certificates are granted to students who receive an average score of at least 3.25 on all AP exams taken, and scores of 3 or higher on four or more of these exams.

Among the recent graduates, Catherine Quirion of Lac-Mégantic, Que. and Tzu-Ting “Tiffany” Hsu of Taipei, Taiwan were named AP Scholars with Honor, while Pisit Wetchayanwiwat of Bangkok, Thailand was named an AP Scholar.

Congratulations to all.

Tiffany Hsu took in a Raiders hockey game to cheer on former classmate Catherine Quirion. Catherine is enrolled in the pre-med program at Colgate University in Hamilton, NY and Tiffany is studying mechanical engineering at the Rochester Institute of Technology in Rochester, NY.

Student travels to India for Earth Science Olympiad

In September, Jacob Hochstrasser-Borsari (pictured below centre), a Grade 11 student from Holland, Vt., attended the 7th International Earth Science Olympiad in Mysore, India as part of Team USA.

Jacob qualified for the event after attending the Governor Institutes of Vermont engineering weekend, where students from across the state and the U.S. sought to create engineering solutions to societal problems. Jacob and his partner devised a deadbolt lock driven by a Servo motor powered by an Arduino programmable microcontroller.

In India, the students were evaluated for their knowledge of the Earth sciences, then broken up into international teams and taken into the field to evaluate a current issue facing a community in India. The group of international students then conducted field research regarding the science involved, and presented their findings and recommendations to a group of local scientists and political leaders.

During his travels to and during the conference, Jacob was overwhelmed by the poverty in the surrounding communities and in the countryside.

“A citizen of a first world nation who complains about the small discomforts in life, I could not have felt more helpless and hypocritical than right then, seeing the people that I could not help but, through the actions of my nations, had time to hurt,” wrote Jacob in his account of the trip (available on our website at SC Blog).

Jacob’s team travelled to the Talur mines, where the main mineral mined is magnesite, and visited students at a local school.

“It was another awesome experience to see just how talented they were and that there were still some people there that could have hope for the future,” said Jacob, who came away from the experience with a renewed conviction in the power of individuals to effect change in the world.

The 8th Annual IESO will be held in Burlington, Vermont in 2014, and Jacob plans to act as a volunteer to assist “the next group of passionate students looking to heal the planet.”

What's in a uniform?

Before you came to Stanstead, you probably thought, “Uniforms? Yuck!” In the pre-Stanstead world, uniforms brought to mind conformity, “Another Brick in the Wall” by Pink Floyd. But after the initial shock – not to mention getting over the tie-tying learning curve – Stanstead students come to accept, even love the school uniform. In an entirely unscientific survey, we asked alumni what they thought of the uniform, either as students or now as adults.

“I loved not having to think about what I was going to wear every day.” – Claire Watson (1994)

“Call me old-fashioned but there’s plenty of time for individuality after school is out.” – Joel Pearce (1974)

“Thought it would be horrible before but ended up loving it. I actually think that the stricter rules didn’t hurt at all!” – Gustl Eder (2001)

“All for the uniforms, though at my time they could have used a little modernizing. If nothing else, though, I still know how to quickly and properly tie a tie because of them.” – Chris Yates (1992)

“I’m all for the uniform, made you feel a part of something special, especially when you were off campus or at a sporting event. Keep the uniform and the respect for the great College!” – Doug Unsworth (1977)

“I still have my blazer and tie hanging in my dresser. Funny thing though it must have shrunk over the years; just doesn’t fit any more.” – Gary Babelmun (1982)

The school uniform has evolved over time. Gone, for example, is the “Captain Kangaroo” piping on the girls’ blazers of the early eighties. But school dress is still required every day, and students wear the formal uniforms not only on campus for special events but also for travel. Strangers notice Stanstead College students in their uniforms, and invariably they are impressed.

The various combinations of school uniforms and school dress now includes UGG-style boots for girls in winter.

Board chairman Jonathan Cowen (1972) notes that the uniform puts all students on the same footing, no matter what their national or economic background. However, the uniform could also be a starting point:

“It made you work harder to stand out,” he said. “With hard work and determination you could modify your uniform a little. You could get a different tie if you became a prefect or you could add a “C” or an “A” to your sports uniform if you earned it. There were always ways to distinguish yourself even if you all looked the same.”

Students continue to add their sports or academic pins to their blazers to signify their contributions and successes. Ultimately, though, the goal of the uniform is to create a sense of self-respect in appearance, a sense of self-discipline in maintaining that appearance, and a sense of pride in belonging to a school community. The uniform gets the job done.

Corrections from previous issue: Regarding “Academic Honours: More names behind the prizes” (Spring 2013), Alan MacMillan (1955) points out that David Wilder (as in the Wilder Shield) was a student not in the late fifties but the early fifties, 1948 to 1951 to be precise. The Wilders were a successful Montreal business family. In fact, the Wilder Building on Bleury above Ste-Catherine into a provincially funded centre for dance companies as well as government office space. In describing the Ralph V. Merry Scholarship, we described the wrong Merry. Ralph V. Merry (1809-1887) was the grandson of Ralph Merry III, who we attributed to the scholarship. The younger Merry was likewise a prominent Magog businessman and politician.

Fall Sports

Stanstead College's senior soccer squads captured the ETIAC championship trophies this fall, capping a season that saw both the boys and girls teams win their respective league titles as well.

After defeating fourth-place BCS 4-1 in the semi-final, the senior boys faced off against Alexander Galt in the final. The third-place Pipers had upset second-place Massey-Vanier in their semi-final game but were outmatched in the final by the Spartans, who managed a 5-1 win on their home field. Four of those goals were scored by cannon-footed Grade 10 student Jeremy Descheneaux, with the fifth by the relentless Tristan Ovesson.

It was a satisfying win for the senior boys, as the league had been close for much of the season after a sluggish start by the Spartans. Indeed, the ETIAC regular-season title was decided in the Spartans' favour thanks to a tie in the final regular-season game between MVR and last-place Richmond Regional.

On the girls' side, Stanstead made it to the final by defeating a tough Massey-Vanier team 2-1. That score would repeat itself in the final against Alexander Galt, the only team that had managed to defeat the senior girls during the regular ETIAC season. Off a pass from Asia Wisco, Gemma MacDonald scored the first goal for the Spartans in the first half. A Stanstead handball set up a Galt penalty kick early on, but a diving save by rookie keeper Samantha Rhainds thwarted the Pipers' hopes. However, late in the second half, a looper over the keepers' head tied it up for Galt.

In the dying minutes of the game, a corner kick from Asia Wisco caromed off a Galt defender into her own net, giving Stanstead a 2-1 lead and eventual win.

It was a great end to the season, which included a third-place finish at the national CAIS Tournament in Pointe-Claire, Que., the girls losing in the semi to eventual tournament champions Holy Trinity School.

This is the second time in three years and only the second time in school history that both the senior boys and girls teams have brought home both the ETIAC regular season titles and playoff championships.

In junior soccer, the boys had an overall record of 3-7-2 and finished in third place in the league, while the girls went 4-3-2, finishing second in the league. At the bantam level, the girls finished in a respectable second place with a regular-season record of 4-4-1, while the boys had a tougher time, ending 2-5-3 in fifth place.

In football, the Spartans joined the Independent Football League of New England this year. The team was helmed by quarterback Drew Packman, who was very proficient at throwing the football, escaping the pass rush and demonstrating leadership on and off the field. The Spartans were always a threat when using their spread offence, which included the sure hands of Roydell Clarke, Josh Stacey and Christopher Smith. While these players excelled when playing in the skilled positions, the hard and dirty work done by linemen such as Grant Baird, Jacob Hochstrasser and Grenville Lines cannot be ignored. The team traveled to locations throughout southern New Hampshire, playing a number of formidable opponents. At season's end, the Stanstead College football squad had recorded a record of four wins and two losses.

"The coaching staff is very proud of these young men, who managed to play some great football while taking to the field with a relatively small number of players every week," said head coach Kevin Philip. "The Spartans will strive to build on this year's success as our planning process starts in preparation for next season."

Olympian Sarah Vaillancourt joins Athletics staff

Among the new faces on staff this fall is one that might be familiar to Canadians across the country. Two-time Olympic gold medalist Sarah Vaillancourt joined the school's athletic department this past summer.

A native of nearby Sherbrooke, Que. Vaillancourt is the new assistant coach of the Girls Hockey Spartans and spent the fall athletic season running intensive speed-and-strength training sessions with the various sports teams. In addition, she is providing academic support in the Learning Resource Centre and performing residential duties.

Vaillancourt was a long-time member of the Canadian women's national team, with whom she won gold medals at the 2006 Olympics in Torino and 2010 Olympics in Vancouver. A graduate of psychology at Harvard University, she was named the Ivy League Player of the Year in 2008 and ECAC Hockey Player of the Year in 2009. In 2011, she was named MVP at the Clarkson Cup as a member of the Montreal Stars. She retired from the national team this past April.

"One of the goals when I was finished with hockey was to go back to the U.S. and coach," said Vaillancourt. "But this summer, I decided to build a house in Sherbrooke, so that kind of put that out of the question. Then I got an offer to work for Stanstead, so it was a perfect timing and a perfect fit for me."

"Perfect" because Vaillancourt spent her last two years of high school at Pomfret School in Connecticut where she improved her English and her hockey skills.

"I knew nothing about prep school when I went there but it was one of the best experiences of my life, so it's fun now to be on the other side," she said.

In fact, Vaillancourt received an offer to coach the boys team back at Pomfret around the same time she was considering the Stanstead offer but felt she wasn't quite ready. As it turns out, she has been enjoying the training she has been doing here and is thinking of continuing her studies to specialize in the field.

"I'm really quite content at Stanstead," she said.

C. Gordon Lindsay, who currently lives in Vancouver, BC, was in Montreal earlier this year to receive the Engineering Institute of Canada's senior award, the CPR Medal, for his work with Engineering Societies in advancing the engineering profession with newly graduated engineers and arranging monthly luncheons for senior or retired engineers in Vancouver for the past 31 years.

Long-serving Ottawa-area Scout leader Rodney Wilson (above right) was honoured with the Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal at a ceremony on Parliament Hill. Rod was recognized for lifelong community volunteerism and for his many significant contributions to Scouting in Canada. In a separate ceremony Rod was awarded the Silver Acorn Medal for especially distinguished service to Scouting. For over 30 years he has dedicated much of his time to furthering the Scouting movement in Canada, bringing outdoor adventure, personal development and the joys of Scouting to thousands of Canadian children and youth. When not volunteering, Rod is an executive with a telecommunications equipment manufacturer specializing in high-speed fibre optic technology design.

How many Patrick brothers attended SC?

By Ross Murray

It's tricky to prove a negative, to say definitely that something didn't happen, especially when legend says it did.

At Stanstead College, legend has it that hockey's famous Patrick brothers – Lester and younger brother Frank – both attended the school at the turn of the last century.

Consider the evidence for:

There was the Patrick Trophy for House League Hockey, first presented in 1933. According to the College Annual of that year, "The donors were none other than the reputed Frank and Lester Patrick who at one time were students at S.W. C."

From The Stanstead Journal of February 9, 1933: "When Mr. Amaron showed the New Cup, presented by Mr. Lester Patrick for the house league hockey, to "Swede" Farley, he said that no one would get it but himself and that no one else had a chance."

There is this article printed in The Stanstead Journal in 1973, entitled "The origin of Hockey in this community" by Joseph Maheux, who wrote, "In the early 1900s, an event took place which helped the local young men decide to do something about forming a team to play this new game. This was the coming to Stanstead College of two men who in later years would become famous as National League figures: they were the Patrick brothers, Frank and Lester."

The 1943 yearbook reports on the Alumni Banquet of May 29, 1943 with guest speaker Mr. Frank Patrick, who "recalled his own days at the College, with a brother and two sisters in Dr. Flanders' time [1893-1908]."

The obituary for Mrs. Pearl Hunt (1885-1980) states that she attended Stanstead College where, "she played hockey on a team with Frank and Lester Patrick."

Legends can grow, however, on wishful thinking, assumptions and mistaken identity, and there are plenty of reasons to wish to be associated with the Patrick brothers. Born in Drummondville, Quebec (Lester, December 31, 1883; Frank, December 21, 1885), the two grew up to be pioneers of the National Hockey League. Lester was a member of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Wanderers of 1906, founded the Pacific Coast Hockey Association with brother Frank and coached the New York Rangers. Frank was no slouch himself: a player, a Stanley Cup winner with the Vancouver Millionaires in 1915, and head coach of the Boston Bruins.

Frank Patrick also instituted the blue line, the penalty shot and the boarding penalty.

Both brothers are members of the Hockey Hall of Fame with Eastern Townships roots.

We know for sure that Frank Patrick attended Stanstead College for one year. But there is no solid evidence that Lester Patrick ever attended Stanstead College as a student.

Frank's year at Stanstead

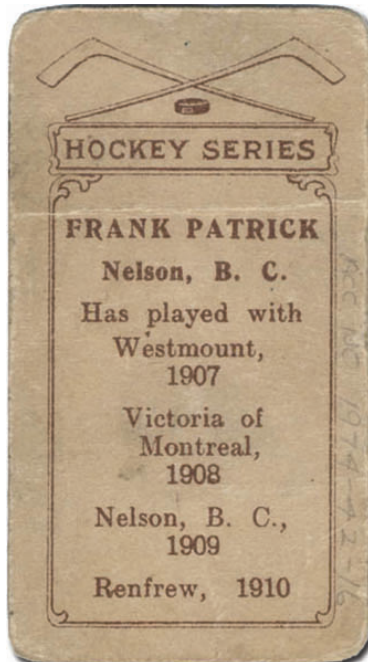

Frank Patrick enrolled at Stanstead in the fall of 1904 after graduating from the High School of Montreal the previous spring. (Stanstead was associated with McGill University at the time and offered some first-year credits.)

"Although I spent only one year at Stanstead... the days were some of the happiest in my life," Frank wrote in a Boston Globe piece in 1933. "I met many splendid people whose acquaintance I have kept through many years."

The "College Column" in a November 1904 issue of The Stanstead Journal reports that Franklin Patrick "made a capital speech" in a debate in favour of the Liberals returning to power because of "1) its Railway Policy, 2) its Immigration Policy, 3) its purity of administration."

By then, Frank had already made his name as an athlete, serving as half-back and captain of the football team, leading the home squad to an undefeated 6-0 record. The final game of the year was an exhibition contest during Thanksgiving against a Montreal team that included another future

NHL pioneer, Art Ross, and Frank's older brother Lester. And the visiting team was big!

"What's the idea, do you want to murder us?" Frank recalled asking his old friend Art, as recounted in the Globe article.

Don't worry, Art said. They would take it easy on the little Stanstead team if Frank could arrange to get them into the Chicken Pie Social to be held that evening – with the lady students present.

"So we had the football game, Lester refereed, and I guess the 'varsity' did take it easy, because the contest ended in a 7-7 tie," Frank recalled.

St-Charles, moving to Westmount in 1895. Lester's reminiscences of the intervening years before 1900, collected in the book, are all of Montreal.

The alumni notes in the College magazines of 1909 and 1910 mention Frank Patrick living in BC. The issue of February 1910, in fact says, "Some of our old hockey players are prominent this season. Frank Patrick, as everybody knows, is playing for Renfrew. 'Pete' Payan, Harold and Lee Hyndman are with Sherbrooke." There is no mention of Lester, who was also playing for Renfrew in 1910.

We have found no mentions (to date) of Lester in The Stanstead Journal or on any College artifacts from that era.

The evidence against

So Lester Patrick did visit Stanstead College at least one time and perhaps other times as well that school year – maybe even playing pick-up hockey with the future Mrs. Hunt. But there is no concrete evidence that he ever studied at Stanstead, and the evidence against such a possibility is strong:

Lester enrolled at McGill University in 1900, so he would have had to have been at Stanstead prior. However, a photo posted on the website Hockey Gods (hockeygods.com) shows Lester posing with the 1899-1900 senior championship hockey team from the High School of Montreal. The chronology precludes a "post-grad" year at Stanstead.

Eric Whitehead in his book The Patricks: Hockey's Royal Family (Doubleday Canada 1980) refers to Frank attending Stanstead College but makes no mention of Lester doing so. He mentions that Lester, at age 10, enrolled at Loren Public School in Point

Eastern Townships champs

Perhaps it was confusion over the brothers' names that resulted in the conviction that they both attended Stanstead. Frank definitely did and certainly helped stir up excitement for hockey in the border region. Just read this account from The Journal of the final game against Lennoxville for the Eastern Townships Hockey League championship in March 1905:

"Patrick made several brilliant rushes during the game, taking the puck from the vicinity of the College goal, outskating the Lennoxville forward line, jumping their defence and then gently tossing it into the net. The strategy of the wary rover was too much for the opponents. In a melee he could invariably be seen lying in wait outside the struggling mass and if anything came his way it would be sure to meet with the reception it deserved."

The College won that game 9-4.

As for why the House League Hockey Cup (now missing) would be attributed to both brothers, it may have been as a courtesy and tribute to two boys with roots in the region who had changed the face of sport in Canada.

Yet only one, Frank Patrick, a hockey pioneer, has his name permanently etched on that championship cup of 1905, the third of three in a row that the College won, along with Harkness, Flanders, Hebert, Price, Hyndman and Payan. We are proud to call Frank Patrick an early legend of Stanstead College hockey.

Champagny

Classmates Blanche du Sault (Stanford) and Vanessa Champagny (Norwich) met head-to-head in the Women's Rugby Division I National Championship semi-final at Stanford University this spring. Vanessa and the Norwich team moved on to the finals on May 4, 2013, where they were defeated by Penn State. Congratulations to both girls on making it to the final four.

2012

Colby-Sawyer College named Hailey Nadeau from Newport, Vt. to the Dean's List for academic achievement during the 2013 spring semester. Hailey is majoring in nursing.

Former Faculty & Staff

Peter Boyd, now retired, lives in Lansdowne, Ontario with his wife of 51 years, Roberta. On October 12 of this year, Peter and the rest of the 1959 cross-country running team from Dubuque were inducted into the Alumni Athletic Hall of Fame at Dubuque's Homecoming in Iowa. That weekend also marked his 50th reunion, and Peter was still able to fit into his lettermen's jacket (above). Peter is currently putting together a scrapbook depicting his teaching years (1962-1983 at Stanstead). He has so many happy memories and says "Hello" to all those students he taught and coached so many years ago.

Faculty & Staff

Logan Robert Anthony May was born July 12, 2013 at 10:24 a.m. to proud parents Rob and Stephanie May.

Thank you!

The 2013 Stanstead College Alumni & Friends Fundraising Golf Tournament at Dufferin Heights Country Club was our best ever, raising close to $40,000 for scholarships and bursaries.

Congratulations to this year's tournament winners: Dominic Fontaine, Patrick Charbonneau and Claude Morin.

Thanks to all the players who joined us for a beautiful fall day of golf.

See you September 26, 2014!

A quick look at giving big

It's a snapshot world. Information comes at us in flashes and bursts. That's why we wanted to give you a quick glimpse – an Instaglimpse, if you will – of this year's Stanstead College Annual Fund.

The Annual Fund provides much-needed support for students in the form of scholarships and bursaries. Did you know that Stanstead College now provides approximately $1 million in financial aid every year? This assists students who might otherwise not be able to attend the school and benefit from the rigorous, structured education that quite simply opens life's doors.

The Annual Fund also helps provide improvements to programming, upgrades to facilities, sports uniforms and equipment, new musical instruments, and on and on.

To give you an idea of some of those needs, we've included on these pages some Instagive shots of initiatives the school is hoping to fund. You can direct your support to any of these projects or the "greatest need" by filling out the enclosed donation form or by donating online at www.stansteadcollege.com. You can also contact us at (819) 876-7891, ext. 225 or karen.cushing@stansteadcollege.com.

And finally, THANK YOU to everyone listed on these pages who helped fill last year's needs, donating an impressive $260,000 to the 2012-13 Stanstead College Annual Fund. More alumni than ever contributed to last year's campaign, which is a great show of support for your school and for current and future students. We hope this commitment to Stanstead College and its mission will continue this year and for many years to come.

So, to make it short and sweet:
Please give!
And thank you so very much!

Joseph Levy: A question of paying back

Don't talk to Joseph Levy about how much time he's given to Stanstead College.

"It's not about how much time I've given to the school," says Levy, Class of 1969. "It's about me paying back. If it wasn't for Stanstead College, I wouldn't be doing what I'm doing now."

That's a fairly big statement from a man who owns his own specialty advertising company, Montreal's Mediavation, a company that has worked with clients ranging from Formula 1 Racing to Coca-Cola and is recognized as one of the top 100 agencies in the country. But Levy is adamant that Stanstead College changed his life.

"I was in Grade 8 in Montreal, and I was flunking. The police were bringing me home at night. I went to Stanstead because my brother Victor wanted to go, so I went too," he recalls. "My first year, I was 'What am I doing here?' The second year, I knew what to expect. By the third year, I was there before the school even opened."

As is often the case, Levy attributes his success at Stanstead to teachers, teachers who wouldn't accept students not doing well, teachers like Mrs. McClary for Math, Mr. McConnachie, Mr. Williams the house master. Plus, while he was at Stanstead, Joseph began dating his future wife, Susan Caulfield, who was a student down at Sacred Heart in Newport, Vt. They've been married for 39 years.

"School engaged me and challenged me," he says. "I've often said that at Stanstead, we don't make lawyers, doctors and accountants. Stanstead College puts out entrepreneurs. The school is about surviving and leadership. It's about teaching you self-esteem – winning at football, succeeding at math. Whatever time I've put in to help the school, I will never be able to make up what it's done for me."

Levy has certainly tried over the years. Beginning as a member of the Montreal Alumni Association, Levy joined the Board of Directors in 1995. In addition to chairing several committees, Joseph was the chairman of the Board of Directors from 2002 to 2006 and served as president of the Council of Trustees from 2004 until 2012. He remains a trustee of the school and is a director of the Red & White Educational Foundation, the school's fundraising entity.

Among these fundraising initiatives was the campaign to build the Pat Burns Arena in partnership with the Town of Stanstead, a campaign in which Joseph played a key role and is especially proud. For his work in this campaign and in recognition of his many years of contribution to the school, Joseph was awarded the Stanstead College Trustees' Award of Merit in 2013. He and arena campaign chair Chris Wood were also recently presented with paintings to thank them for their work on making the Pat Burns Arena campaign a success.

Levy is proud of the work he has done for Stanstead College, including overseeing changes to governance and the hiring of two headmasters, including current headmaster Michael Wolfe, and encouraging the current board chairman, Jonathan Cowen, to join the board in the first place.

"I'm proud of everybody working for and with the school, and I feel it's in good hands. I'm looking forward to staying involved."

Stanstead College takes solar step to sustainability

The College has embarked on several initiatives towards this end, including a new heating system with a compact gas condensing boiler capable of achieving ultra-high efficiency levels of 96%, zoned heating, and an electric-powered ice resurfer for the Pat Burns Arena. The Environmental Committee, however, wanted to further raise the visibility of its efforts and pursue a project that could be integrated into the educational curriculum. It explored several projects before deciding on "going solar."

The sun that poured down on Homecoming 2013 is also now powering the Eric T. Webster Student Centre. The most recent achievement of the Stanstead College Environmental Committee, a new 5 kW roof-mounted solar panel array, was installed on the Student Centre in August and was officially unveiled on the afternoon of Homecoming by committee chairman VJ Bala (Class of 1994).

The 5kW Solar System can generate 10,000 kWh per year, enough electricity to power up to 50% of the needs of the Student Centre. Students will monitor and record the system's performance on the school website and report its output to faculty and students at assembly. The school's Art Department will work with students to visually depict the panels' positive environmental impact, through pieces on display in the Student Centre and around campus.

VJ met with a number of College prefects on the Friday before Homecoming to discuss these and other environmental initiatives.

"I was curious to see how the students would respond," said VJ. "It turned out to be such a pleasure to have that dialogue. There were ideas that came out of it that the committee hadn't even thought of, things like starting a Facebook page for these types of environmental initiatives. It shows that the College cares about the future."

In 2007 Stanstead College announced a Declaration of Environmental Principles. It resulted in the creation of an Environmental Committee that in turn developed a Green Manifesto which targets that, "Stanstead College in its functioning will, at a minimum, have no net impact on the earth or any of the future generations of the earth."

Other changes on campus

In Memoriam

Jane DONNELLY nee FRANCIS Class of 1937

October 5, 2013

At Stanstead College, Jane and her new friend Margo Jobin of Quebec City developed a strong friendship that lasted 78 years. Her zest for life carried her through various experiences. In her late sixties, her fearlessness took her hiking in the Andes and snorkeling in the ocean off the Galapagos Islands. As a life-long learner, in her seventies, she sometimes could be found having lunch with her grandson, Graham, when they were both attending Ryerson. Married in 1943 to Gordon Donnelly, Jane had four daughters and still found time to volunteer for Girl Guides, sing in the church choir and various other clubs and societies.

Eileen TAYLOR nee MCCOY Class of 1943

August 30, 2013

Eileen was a teacher, wife, mother and dear friend to many. She will always be remembered for being smart, stylish, witty, good-natured and spirited.

Valdor MONGEAU Class of 1947

April 29, 2013

Passed away at the palliative centre in Magog due to cancer at the age of 82. Beloved husband of Denise Sirois and cherished father of Nicole, Joanne (Normand Lachance), also Michel Gaulin (Ghislaine Trahan).

Raymond SMITH Class of 1950

March 9, 2013

Passed away peacefully in his sleep at the Jewish General Hospital. Beloved husband of Patricia for 60 years and loving father of David.

John PITT Class of 1952

March 24, 2013

At the age of 75 in Lorraine, Quebec.

Betty BOYD Class of 1955

March 12, 2013

Unexpectedly in Ottawa. Cherished wife of Bill McColm.

Faith GRADY nee GAFFIELD Class of 1953

July 26, 2013

Faith passed away peacefully at her home in the care of her family following a period of declining health. She was 77. An accomplished musician, she played the piano and organ. Music was a part of her life starting at the young age of six and she continued to serve wherever music was needed. She was the recipient of First Place Female Solo at the 1953 Vermont All State Musical Festival. Her gift of music brought joy to many.

Beverley BOSWELL nee MACALISTER Class of 1955

April 4, 2013

Beverly passed away peacefully at the Palliative Care Unit of the Prince Edward Home at the age 74. Born in Montreal in 1938, Beverley lived a life full of accomplishment and adventure. After graduating from Stanstead, she married Dr. David M. Boswell in Montreal in 1956. Beverley was well travelled and spent time living in Massachusetts, Ottawa, Utah and Japan, but her "home" was in P.E.I. She spent the last 10 years in Charlottetown with her new life partner Ray Fralick. While busy raising her young family of four children, she found time to take numerous university courses and later returned to university to earn her BSc. Her work included real estate and teaching. A lifelong volunteer, she generously dedicated her time to many worthwhile organizations. Beverley was a skilled seamstress and quilt maker who loved to dance and play bridge. Those who knew her, however, knew that her true passion was golf.

Janet STEVENSON nee REEVES Class of 1956

June 28, 2013

Passed away surrounded by family at CHUS Hotel Dieu.

George H. BISHOP Class of 1957

November 12, 2012

George passed away peacefully at the CHUS Fleurimont with family and friends by his side. George was a devoted and respected career funeral director and co-owner of R.L. Bishop and Son Funeral Homes and Cass Funeral Homes. An alumni of Stanstead College, George was a member of the Sherbrooke Ride and Drive Club, Compton County Fish & Game Club, Sherbrooke Curling Club, Life member of Victoria Lodge 16 and Past President of the Sherbrooke Y's Men's Club.

Mary MARTIN nee PEARSON Former Faculty

July 7, 2013

Passed away, at the age of 81, surrounded by loved ones, after a long and courageous battle with cancer. Mary was the mother of former staff member Isabel Marcotte and grandmother to Ann (Class of 1999) and Alex Marcotte (Class of 2004).
